Die-cut flyers are used by businesses, organizations, and industries of all types because they're affordable and have a great return on investment. Retailers, restaurants, professional services, schools, non-profits, and venues use die-cut flyers to share:

- Sales and discounts
- New products

Die-Cut Flyer Design Tips

If you only need to make a simple flyer for a school bake sale or community garage sale, you may be able to create your own design if you have experience using graphic design programs. On the other hand, if your die-cut flyer is being used for marketing purposes, we suggest using a professional graphic designer to ensure that the finished product has a polished look. Here are some die-cut flyer design tips to keep in mind:

- Use images carefully. Since your flyer will be cut into a shape, you don't want important parts of your photos or illustrations to be cut off.
- If you're choosing an intricate shape, it's best to keep it simple with your graphics. A specialized shape will be enough to grab attention on its own.

- Die-cut flyers can also be made in more simple shapes like rectangles with rounded corners or ovals. These are ideal for featuring eye-catching graphics.

Frequently Asked Questions About Die-Cut Flyers

What is the best size for die-cut flyers?

There's no one-size-fits-all recommendation when it comes to the best size for die-cut flyers. Think about how you plan on using your flyers and what information you need to convey. A flyer that's being hung on a wall to promote an upcoming sale will need to be bigger than a small flyer being mailed to clients to announce a new stylist at a salon.

Can I print die-cut flyers in different sizes?

Yes, when you choose EnvironPrint, you can select any size and any shape for your die-cut flyers. Just let us know what you need and we'll help make your dream a reality.

How can I design custom die-cut flyers?

Our downloadable file templates make it easy for you (or your graphic designer) to create your custom die-cut flyers. Simply download the template size that works for your needs, use it to create your flyers, then upload it to the EnvironPrint website when you're about to place your order.

What is the best finish for die-cut flyers?

While a gloss finish has been a common choice in marketing for decades, matte finishes are increasingly in demand because they offer a chic, elegant look and the lack of reflection makes them easy to read and a great choice for rooms with bright overhead lighting. If you're not sure which finish would look best for your flyers, contact us and we can help you decide.

What type of paper should I use for die-cut flyers?

When you're choosing paper for your die-cut flyers, think about how you plan to distribute them. If you're mailing them in envelopes, a thinner paper stock works well; if you're using them as postcards, opt for a thicker stock. Die-cut flyers that will be hung on walls for weeks or months are best made with a durable, thick paper stock.

What is the minimum quantity of die-cut flyers that I can order?

We have no minimum quantities at EnvironPrint, which means you can order a single die-cut flyer to ensure that you're pleased with the design, shape, material, and finish before placing a full order.

How long will it take to get my custom die-cut flyers?

If you need die-cut flyers fast, EnvironPrint will deliver! When placing your die-cut flyer order, select the printing time you need from the drop-down menu. Then, view our shipping rates and delivery estimates to select the shipping speed that is best for your timeline. With our premium shipping option, your die-cut flyers will be delivered to your door in only 1 to 2 days after printing is complete.
