Design Tips for Custom Jar Labels

Our downloadable file templates make it easy to design your own jar labels when you already have images and branding you'd like to use or if you're familiar with using graphic design programs. If you're creating jar labels from scratch, consider hiring a graphic designer to help you design something that looks professional, especially if you sell your products in retail stores. Here are some other tips to keep in mind:

- Don't limit yourself to a standard square, rectangle, or oval. We can provide you with die-cut jar labels in any shape imaginable.
- Make sure your jar label is easy to read by choosing simple typefaces and including only must-know information.
- If you're creating jar labels for food, you may want to print one label for the front with the product name and your business logo and another for the back with a list of ingredients and nutrition information.
- If you don't have the budget for a graphic designer, you can purchase vector graphics online to incorporate into your design.
